

THE STAR WAIST

For Little Boys

The designer of waists for wee boys must know how to throw in an air of sturdy manliness despite the simple childishness of the whole thing.

The one who doesn't know how simply makes a fussy frock; the one who has mastered the art creates a fascinating little garment.

The "Star" waist is simple and possesses three cardinal points:—coolness, newness, and washableness.

We have a large variety of pretty patterns at the present time both white and colored with collars attached, that mothers are invited to see.

Price $1.00 each.

LOYAL SCOTS HONOR THE MEMORY OF ROBT. BURNS

Feasting, Speeches and Song at Waverley Hall. Scotchmen Who Helped in the Development of the Hawaiian Islands.

Chief D. W. Anderson presided at the Burns anniversary celebration last evening and opened the meeting with a few well chosen words. After an overture by the orchestra and a solo, "There was a Lad was Born in Kyle" by J. L. Cockburn, Robert Catton responded to the toast of the evening, "The Immortal Memory of Robert Burns." Mr. Catton's response was a most excellent characterization of the life and work of the great poet. He showed how wonderfully the fame of Burns had grown since his death. The poet said one day to his wife, "Jean, they'll think a great deal more of me a hundred years after this than they do now." How much he had but little idea.

Hugo Herzer sang "The Star o' Robbie Burns" and received an enthusiastic encore although he refused to respond. Attorney General Lorrin Andrews responded to the toast, "The President of the United States" which was drunk standing, the orchestra playing "The Star Spangled Banner." J. F. Dick recited "Tam O'Shanter" in a manner that brought down the house and he was compelled to recite another Scotch ballad. Stanley Livingstone sang that beautiful song, "The Bonnie Banks o' Loch Lomond" in a manner that brought out loud applause and W. A. Love rendered a beautiful solo on the violin. The toast "The King and Queen" was enthusiastically drunk, the entire company singing "God Save the King." A solo, "Sons of the Motherland," by James F. Fenwick called out loud cheers and the singer responded with "The British Navy," the company joining in the chorus.

George W. Smith responded to the toast "The Land We Live In," giving a scholarly address dedicated to the wandering Scots. He paid tribute to the verdure clad, tropical Isles of Hawaii to which many Scots have come and identified themselves with its history. "Here," he said, "we have no moss-grown abbeys to adorn the land, but the project of a Federal building splits our minds." (Laughter). Mr. Smith then told of some of the "Wandering Scots" who made Hawaii their home and blazed the trail for others to come. First was Captain Alexander Adams, mariner, diplomat, promoter of the first Trust in the western hemisphere, that of the sale of sandalwood, and which ended so disastrously for his royal friend and partner, the first Kamehameha. He it was who established the first harbor dues. There was also Robert Wyllie, "Laird of Rosebank," who proved so loyal to his adopted sovereign, and whose hatred of injustice caused him to so bravely withstand the claims of fraud, ensuring thereby the freedom and independence of the island kingdom. Then came Robert Stirling, civil engineer, founder of the public works and whose enduring monument is the present Judiciary Building and the Postoffice. Others were Captain Daniel Smith, harbormaster, who with Curtis Lyon established the weather bureau; the senior Cleghorn, whose name has become linked with all subsequent history of the land; John S. Walker, merchant, Finance Minister, Auditor, whose name is so honorably borne to our day; the brothers McIntyre, one a mariner and pilot, the other a merchant; the Sinclairs, Gays and Robinsons, who introduced grazing and sheep raising; the McBrydes, whose vast estate now supports many; Geo. McLean, Robt. McFie were other sturdy Caledonians.

I. Dillingham made a hit in several songs, and the Symphony Orchestra, led by George F. Davies, made a hit when it played "Rule Britannia." T. H. Lillie for "The Land O' Burns," U. S. District Attorney Breckons for "The Bar," W. R. Farrington, for "The Press," were the remaining speakers, good ones all. Bruce Hartman, W. L. Stanley, J. F. Dick, D. W. Anderson, J. C. Brown, J. L. Cockburn, Edward Munro gave entertaining songs and recitations.

MILITARY AND NAVAL CADETSHIP EXAMINATION

Prof. W. D. Alexander, for geometry, and Prof. Richmond of the High School, for arithmetic and algebra, have accepted the positions of examiners of candidates for military and naval cadetships, at the request of Superintendent A. T. Atkinson of the Department of Education.

Another examiner is to be appointed for the subjects of history, geography and science, for which Mr. Atkinson is awaiting an acceptance.

The Superintendent of Education has no schedule of examinations, and the examiners will have to prepare the papers. There is no law putting the business upon the department, but Mr. Atkinson is acting at the request of Delegate Kuhio, who cabled him as follows on January 16:

"Examine candidates for Naval Academy, also publish notice. Mail results February 14."

Mr. Atkinson in reply asked the Delegate if he meant examinations for Annapolis or West Point.

"Both," was the answer that came.

The Department will, on the results of the examination, recommend three candidates to each cadetship to the Delegate, who will appoint one of them as first choice and the other two as alternates, respectively to the Annapolis Naval Academy and the West Point Military Academy.
